Shul For Sick And Dependent To Celebrate Tenth Birthday

By Jewish Telegraphic Agency

NEW YORK—A unique congregation's tenth anniversary will be celebrated on May 18. It is the synagogue on Welfare Island in the East River for sick and dependent Jews who are inmates of the city institutions on the island.

The simple brick building is the gift to the city of the Jewish Wo-a precedent in inter-denominational cooperation.

Rabbi Henry J. Berkowitz, Beth Israel congregation leader, pointed out that the Hebrew Sunday School and the unit of Albany college have the same objectives of character-building.

"We are going to share our home," said Rabbi Berkowitz, addressing the first chapel service of the unit in its new quarters. "We are pioneers in this kind of movement. Our two families can dwell under the same roof and derive much benefit."

Beth Israel congregation will continue to use the three-story building on Sunday and the college unit the balance of the week.

Friend of Jews Shekel Buyer

Special

NEW YORK—Charles Edward Russell, president of the pro-Palestine Federation of America, a non-Jew who has devoted himself to the development of a Christian organization for the espousal of Zionism, was granted the privilege of buying a Shekel so that he might be entitled to sign a petition urging Great Britain, as the mandatory power for Palestine, to "resist the infringement of Jewish rights" in Palestine.

Town Registers 100 Per Cent

NEW YORK—Piqua, O., with an adult Jewish population of twenty persons in a city of some 16,000 became the first Jewish community in the United States to show a 100 per cent enrollment for the 1937 Shekel Roll Call, according to an announcement made by Samuel Schmidt executive secretary of the U. S. Central Shekel Board.

men of New York through the local section of the National Council of Jewish Women. The movement to build the structure was begun in 1924, in December, 1926, construction was begun and in 1927 the key was presented to the city.

The building is maintained by the city, but the rabbi is paid by the council. Every Friday evening between 150 and 200 inmates journey to the synagogue for Sabbath services. The procession winds slowly along narrow paths, the invalids in wheel chairs helped by their companions.

On May 18 women of the council and of many religious organizations of Greater New York will go out to the synagogue for a tenth anniversary celebration. Everyone who helped build the place of worship has been invited to the ceremony, and the synagogue will be filled to overflowing. It seats only about 300.

The program for the meeting has been arranged by a committee headed by Mrs. Leo Sulzberger, president of the New York Section of the Council. The rabbi of the synagogue, Dr. Lee M. Reichel, and several guest speakers will address the audience. Mayor LaGuardia has been invited to represent the city.

"Stitch McCarthy", Grand Street Mayor, Succumbs

By Jewish Telegraphic Agency

NEW YORK—Samuel Rothberg, a Rumanian Jew who came to be better known by the name "Stitch McCarthy" than by his own name, died last week after a heart attack. He was 62 years old.

Unofficial "mayor of Grand Street" and chief of the New York League of Locality Mayors, he made a fortune in the bail bond business. He was a colorful figure, known for his eccentricities, his philanthropies and his ungrammatical wise sayings—many of which were put into his mouth by reporters.

Nazi Activities of Teacher Sifted by School Board

By Jewish Telegraphic Agency

PHILADELPHIA—The Board of Education discussed the case of Dr. Besse R. Burchett, a high school teacher whose dismissal has been asked by the Philadelphia Jewish World and several anti-Nazi organizations on the ground she addressed a Nazi meeting and participated in pro-Nazi activities. The matter was referred to the committee on educational policy.

The Jewish War Veterans of the United States was among the organizations which, together with a number of individuals, joined the Jewish World in protesting to the board against Dr. Burchett, who is said to have spoken on the same platform as Fritz Kuhn, head of the German-American Bund. She is a teacher at the West Philadelphia High School.

Recently 150 high school students organized a parade in protest against Dr. Burchett.

Palestine Cuts Number of Visas

By Jewish Telegraphic Agency

JERUSALEM—High Commissioner Sir Arthur Grenfell Wauchope Monday approved one of the lowest schedules of labor immigration in recent years. It provides for issuance of 770 certificates during the four months between April and July.

The four-month schedule is a departure from the previous six-month schedules and is authorized by an amendment published in the Government gazette empowering the High Commissioner to approve schedules covering less than a half year. The abnormally low schedule threw a damper on the preparations for the Coronation celebrations in which the Palestine Jewish community had been engaged.

The new schedule provides for issuance of an average 192 certificates monthly, as compared with the 250 per month under the last schedule, 667 a month between April and October, 1936; 540 a month between October, 1935, and April, 1936; and 1,334 a month between April and October, 1935.

NEW YORK—Dr. Erma Lubinsky, once a prominent specialist in children's diseases in Berlin, but who was forced into exile when Hitler came to power in Germany, committed suicide last week by leaping from the window of her room in the Clara de Hirsch Home. She was 36 years old.

She left a note in blank verse addressed to her husband in France, and another to friends in New York who had helped her.

STATUE REMOVAL HIT

By Jewish Telegraphic Agency

PRAHA—The Praha Municipality has decided to transfer the well-known statue of "Moses Writing the Ten Commandments," which has for many years stood in the vestibule of the Municipal Library, to the small square opposite the Orthodox Old Synagogue. The Jewish Community protested in vain against the transfer of the statue on religious grounds.

JEWS OF EMPIRE FELICITATE KING

By Jewish Telegraphic Agency

LONDON—Scattered throughout the British Commonwealth of Nations, the Jews took part Wednesday in the rejoicing over the Coronation of King George VI and Queen Elizabeth.

the noted British conductor, led the Palestine Symphony Orchestra in a Coronation concert.

Special prayers for the occasion were drawn up by Chief Rabbi Joseph H. Hertz. The following is the Coronation prayer recited in British synagogues:

"Almighty God,
"By Thee kings reign and princes rule. Thou establishest their throne, and in Thy hand is their glory and majesty. Thou didst set Thy servant King George upon the throne of his fathers, high among the monarchs of the earth. Many peoples, from sea to sea and from the rising of the sun unto the going down of the same, hast Thou placed under his sceptre, a sceptre of freedom righteousness, and humanity.

"And this day he hath been anointed King, and the crown of sovereignty hath been placed on his head. This day he hath lifted up his hand to heaven and hath taken the oath, that he would rule over his peoples according to the Statutes of the realm. Songs of rejoicing and loyal homage resound from his loving subjects throughout the world. And happy are we, the Children of Israel who dwell in safety under his shadow, that we share in his royal acclamation. Our hearts overflow with gratitude unto Thee, who hast cast our lot in these lands, and hast kept up in life, preserved us, and enabled us to reach this day of rejoicing.

"Therefore we are come to Thy house with psalm and thanksgiving, and fervently do we pray, O God, save the King! Prolong his days in happiness, and his years in well-being; and even as Thou hast set a diadem of gold upon his head, so crown him with glory, and anoint him with the oil of gladness. Send forth Thy light and Thy truth, let them lead him, and Thine arm strengthen him to bear the heavy yoke of governance. Fulfil in him Thy sacred promise, 'When he calleth upon Me, I will answer him; I will be with him in trouble; I will deliver him and honour him. With length of days will I satisfy him, and I will let him see My salvation.'

"Pour out the riches of Thy heavenly goodness upon Queen Elizabeth, who standeth at the right hand of the King in gracious majesty; and bestow Thy choice blessings upon Mary the Queen Mother, the Princess Elizabeth, and upon all the members of the Royal House. Grant unto the counsellors of our Sovereign and the representatives of the Nation a spirit of wisdom and understanding: prosper their deliberations, so that these lead to lasting and beneficial results. Have all the lands under the King's dominion in Thy keeping; and withhold pestilence, the sword and famine from their borders. Remove envy, strife and causeless hatred from the hearts of their inhabitants; and all flesh shall see how good and pleasant it is for brethren to dwell together in unity. (Continued on Page 2)

The Editor's Chair:

In making a tour of boys and girls camps in Michigan and Wisconsin last week, I was surprised at the devout program every camp, regardless of the religious conviction of the camp director, arranged for the campers.

After talking to a few of these directors, the logic of the Jewishness of the program became very apparent. Not only is kashruth maintained, but Yiddish and Hebrew songs are sung, services are held, and classes in Hebrew are conducted daily. Then too, every camp was able to boast at least one councillor who was a student rabbi either at Hebrew Union College in Cincinnati, or at a Seminary.

The logic of this religiosity is this. In many of the rich homes from which the campers come, the Jewish content of every-day life is noticeable mostly by its absence. Neither the meals, the conduct of the house, or the attendance at services, would indicate any Jewish affiliation, and for that matter, even the people, friends of the family, who frequent the house, in many cases were almost wholly non-Jewish. So the wise Jewish mother, realizing what is happening to Jews throughout the world, seizes on the camp period as an opportunity for pleasant and impressive instruction in the Jewish way of life. Under competent direction, the Jewish boy or girl from the empty Jewish home, may learn the beauties of Jewish life; may learn the freedom from bias of Jewish playmates, and learn that a normal life is entirely possible, even though the stigma of "Jew" exists.

Camping, originally a play period out-of-doors, has acquired this new aspect for Jewish children. A wholesome outlook on life is the result of two months or ten weeks at a Jewish camp.

And so I was surprised when I learned of the almost exclusively Jewish programs of practically all the camps.

Any readers wanting first-hand information on Jewish camps in Michigan and Wisconsin may write to me. I shall be glad to advise parents where to send their children. For other information, readers may write to the Camp And Resort Bureau, care of this paper.

New Agunah Law Will Be Ignored

WHEN an orthodox Jewish wife is deserted by her husband who does not return to grant her a divorce, the wife, according to a final decision by the Union of Orthodox Rabbis last week, has no recourse but to spend the rest of her days in permanent unhappiness.

Unquestionably, as the good rabbis have shown, hundred of orthodox authorities of the past back this stand of the Agudas Rabbonim.

Yet the action of the Orthodox Rabbis has a clear analogy in the refusal of the Catholic Church to recognize birth control. It must be evident to all, that in the case of birth control, Catholic families are unwillingly being forced to violate one of the canons of the faith they profess because financial or other considerations prevent them from having an unlimited number of children.

So too in the case of the "agunah". No Jewish woman, because her husband has fled in years past, perhaps now to lie in an unknown grave, will allow herself to be condemned to misery because of the orthodox law. Rather she will turn to Conservatism, or Reform Jewry, and continue to practice Judaism in as devout a manner as possible.

Nothing To Be Gained In Ignoring The Facts

THE American Jewish Congress and other groups have tried to deny the very obvious relation between the most recent Madison Square Garden mass meeting protesting against the Nazi regime, and the suppression of the B'nai B'rith in Germany.

Regardless of the apologies, it must be clear to all who care to recognize the brutal facts, that the Nazi deliberately answered the mass meeting with their retaliatory outlawing of B'nai B'rith.

This paper does not suggest that Jews of America and the World now retreat before Hitler because of his threat of increased persecution of Jews of Germany. Not at all. But this paper at the same time sees no reason for refusing to face the facts of any situation. Hitler replied to the Madison Square Garden meeting, and the B'nai B'rith's approval, with his attack on the German Lodge, and there is nothing to be gained by deliberately blinding oneself to the facts.

A Prayer For the New King and Queen

CHIEF Rabbi J. H. Hertz's Coronation Prayer, which was recited Wednesday in synagogues throughout the British Empire, is a beautiful composition, rendering fealty to the English crown in a dignified, grateful, but not abject manner.

The particular loyalty of the English Jew to the House of Windsor is exemplified and embodied by the prayer.

The position of the Jews of the British Empire to the Crown has, especially in recent years, been a constant repetition of graciousness on both sides and pleasing to Jews everywhere. The liberal monarchy, which is England's government, is no less precious to English Jews, than is Democracy in the United States.

This paper, and Jews of America, join in good wishes for King George VI and his Queen.

Church Must Fight For Better Society

By REV. DR. SAMUEL McCREA CAVERT
General Secretary, Federal Council of Churches

IN several European countries today the burning question for the Church is: How can it maintain its own freedom against encroachment by the State? In America the question is: How can the Church influence and guide the life of society and the State? Unless we can answer the American question now, we may have to face the European question later.

The ultimate issue concerns our whole conception of the nature of the Church in relation to society. If (as Christians believe) the Church is the bearer of a Divine Word which it must declare to men, something of immense consequence follows for its relation to the community and the State. It is not the function of the Church merely to express the ideals and aspirations of a particular culture or a particular generation. Its function is rather to challenge the cherished ideas of any generation to culture that does not order its life according to the Christian understanding of man and of society.

The Church, as witness to a kingdom of God existent in the Timeless, ought to be critic and judge of every temporal community. The Church must, of course, enter into the life of the community, otherwise it would have no appeal to the community and could not even be understood by it. But it must not become so identified with the community as to lose its own distinctive witness. Hence tension and conflict are to be expected. Nor need we be surprised if this is so. A Church which exists to carry on the work of One Who came into such conflict with the dominant forces of His day as to be crucified by them can hardly expect to effect an easy adjustment to the world.

We need to realize that our Western civilization is non-Christian in many of its basic assumptions. No thoughtful student of modern civilization can maintain that there is a vital unity between our secular culture and the Christian faith. The reliance on brute force, the lust for power over others, the exploitation of weaker races, the organization of our economic life around the acquisitive impulse, the class structure of our society with a vast disparity between luxury for some and poverty for the masses, and the whole interpretation of life in secular terms and the widespread lack of any sense of need for religion—all these forbid us to think of our Western civilization as in basic harmony with the Christian conception of life.

That the actual churches as we see them about us are far from being truly the Church of Christ must be frankly admitted. Generally speaking, the existing churches have made such a comfortable compromise with the world that they are seldom conscious of any tension. As Reinhold Niebuhr puts it, the average church appears as hardly more than "a quasi-religious and quasi-cultural enterprise which is frequently content to add a pious phrase to whatever values, cultural, social and political, the community may be pursuing."

But we must think less of the churches as they are than of the kind of Church to which as Christians we are committed, a Church that will be true to its own genius as the embodiment of the mind of Christ. We cannot be content to think of the Church as simply a religious club whose character is whatever its members make it. Such a view overlooks the central fact that the Church is the Church of Christ and not merely of men.

Granted that every church must be a "corpus permixtum" to a large extent, including many who enter it for casual reasons and without any real dedication to its central purpose, we cannot allow the Church to be more of a "corpus permixtum" than we can help! To preserve a sense of tension between the Church and the world is a sine qua non of its having spiritual life and power instead of being just another ethical society or cultural association.

High Praise

To The Editor:

I have just seen a copy of your paper for the first time. I was greatly impressed. For an Anglo-Jewish tabloid of its size one would have to travel far to meet its equal. I have written for, and been connected with, several papers of the same nature all over the country. None, I can truthfully say, though I edited one myself, can stand on the same footing as your paper.

139 Pastors Ask For Support of U. P. A.

By Jewish Telegraphic Agency

NEW YORK—A declaration has been signed by more than 130 church leaders from various parts of the country urging Christians to support the United Palestine Appeal's $4,500,000 campaign. It was issued in response to a letter from Dr. Stephen S. Wise, chairman of the U. P. A.

"Recognizing that the goal of universal good-will is not always attained, we believe that a responsibility rests upon Christianity to give assistance to the victims of intolerance," the declaration says. It endorses the effort to find homes for victims of persecution in Palestine.

Costa Rica As Haven Is Studied by Organization

BERLIN—A project for organized colonization of German-Jewish families in Costa Rica, Central America, has been completed by the Hilfsverein der Juden in Deutschland, central Jewish relief body.

The aid of the Council for German Jewry, of which Sir Herbert Samuel and Felix M. Warburg are joint chairmen, as well as Jewish relief organizations in America and elsewhere, will be enlisted. The Costa Rica undertaking was decided upon after a study of all problems involved, it was stated.

More important than a true view of the nature of the State is a true understanding of the Church. So long as the Church exists only in fragments, so long as it breathes the air of nationalism, so long as it is unable to function as a world community, so long will it lack the spiritual authority that will enable it to stand against an arbitrary nationalist State. The attainment of the Church of its true stature as a Christian world community is a first condition of any ultimate solution of the present tensions between the Church and the State.

BIRTHDAY BIOGRAPHIES

Mrs. B. Brown, Organizer of Local Chapter of Hadassah, A Fine Executive

A glow of pride stole over Mrs. B. Brown as she watched the beautiful procession of birthday cakes at the Hadassah Jubilee Luncheon several weeks ago, for she was the founder of Hadassah in Indianapolis, and was the president for six years. She felt that this triumph was worth the hard work necessary for the education of the women to the needs and worth of the organization. It was not easy to get members interested at the beginning. With amusement, Mrs. Brown recalled how some of the women who were approached refused to belong because they thought it was necessary for them to move to Palestine. Many women refused, just on general principles; they didn't want to join, and that was that. However, by sheer dauntlessness, and because she felt that it was such a fine project, Mrs. Brown enlisted the aid of several friends, and established the Indianapolis chapter of Hadassah.

Her home was originally in St. Louis, and she moved here after her marriage. Immediately she was drawn into the social and philanthropic work, and as a very young girl, was elected president of the Ladies Auxiliary of the United Hebrew Congregation, a post which she held for nineteen years. She loved the work. It made her feel that she was doing her share in the building of a full Jewish life for the community. Among her activities were the vice-president of the Indianapolis Zionist Organization and the chairmanship of the Jewish National Fund in Indianapolis.

Mrs. Brown is a very modern woman. She feels that in order to get the most out-of-life, one must move quickly. She thinks that affairs will become even more rapid as time goes on, so she recommends that people become resigned to this fact, and adjust themselves. Interested in many things, she prefers music because she is talented in that field, and delights in concerts and musicals. During her spare time she also enjoys reading.

Although she likes beautiful clothing, Mrs. Brown does not care to go shopping. She is always smartly dressed, so apparently she overcomes her aversion at definite intervals. Sharing the secretiveness of her contemporaries, she inadvertently neglected to tell me her age, but her birthday is May 14. She is soft-spoken, yet firm, and one can easily realize why she made a good executive. Mrs. Brown combines the wisdom acquired through the decades with the eagerness and zest of modern life, and it is this combination which will always bring her happiness.

People And Places

BY BERNICE KAPLAN

Now that everyone has collected his money on War Admiral (we hope it was collection, not distribution), it is safe to describe Derby Day in Louisville. The excitement that prevails among the local citizens is something to be remembered. Saturday morning some of the sidewalks were so crowded with visitors that it was necessary to walk in the streets. Everyone was parading new clothes. White was predominant, and also every possible color combination. Most of those attending the races rode out to the track on street cars even the more wealthy folk, and it was quite amusing to see the conglomeration of classes. Bunched together were several exceptionally smartly dressed couples, who undoubtedly were able to afford the orchids which were selling for $20 per each, a negro and his girl friend, very much "that-a-way" about each other, many of us middle classers, and a few persons who looked rather desperately in need of the substantial things in life, yet were grinning widely at the expectation of their afternoon of fun.

As soon as we entered the gate, our party of a dozen dissolved into the crowd of 75,000 or 80,000 people, and some of them we didn't recover until several hours later. Doug Brown was busy studying the racing forms and dope sheets. Joe Bernstein and Lou Jaeger were non-partial. I played safe, also, but did my best to see how the wheels, or rather, hoofs went around. The atmosphere was quite different than anything I had ever seen before. People were constantly milling around, and it was hardly possible to go through the buildings where bets were being made. More than a half hour lapses between each race, and during that time furtive tips are handed out, weighty consultations are held, money is counted up, and reluctantly parted with. As the time for the races draws nearer, more and more people endeavor to obtain a place near the race-track (an impossibility), and as the race progresses, cheers are heard, then either wild throwing up of hats and broad smiles, or mournful shaking of heads and groans.

The weather was beautiful, and the whole affair seemed to me somewhat like a day spent at the church picnic. There was such an atmosphere of camaraderie, acquaintances were made with people whom one had never seen before, and would never see again. After the Derby was run, numbers of people left, and it was much easier to find a place where one could see the race in its entirety. Meyer B. Cohen was there, urging his horse to win. It was in the lead, but somehow, when it came around in front of him, for no good reason, it slowed down, and another won. Jack Kahn was very helpfully demonstrating the possibilities of a periscope, but apparently it is quite a process to master. At least, I couldn't get any benefit from it. On our way out of Churchill Downs, we passed Dr. Bernard Hyman, collecting the winnings of his party.

In the evening, gardenias which had sold for $1 in the morning, had been reduced to 10c, but the merriment continued. Visitors from all over the country and foreign countries were in town, and service at restaurants was at a premium. The gaiety of those celebrating was infectious, and the whole Derby Day festival was unusual because it encompassed everyone and everything. I had a beautiful Southern accent developed in the few days I was there, but as we crossed the river it seemed to fade away, and by the time we came to Indianapolis, it was almost a memory. However, if I ever go south of the Mason-Dixie Line for more than two weeks, I'm warning everyone that I'll keep my accent as long as possible.

We've got a new department, "The Lost and Found". If anyone has lost a black and gold compact, it is very possible that she may recover it by calling Eunice Brenner. Eunice has had one for a long time, but all of a sudden she realized that she had two of the exact style. She can't imagine where the other came from, but hopes that someone will claim it. It may have been placed somewhere, and she, thinking it was hers, appropriated it, but now she realizes her error, and hopes the owner will let her know. Here's a suggestion from David Maurer on obtaining funds. He tells me that there are a great many poker and other card games throughout the week, and he thinks it would be a good idea if the fellows would contribute a certain percentage of their winnings to a fund which would be donated to a needy cause. The question is, would the boys consent? That remains to be seen.

Here and there we picked up the following. Sidney Davidson, one of the youngest registered pharmacists, will go to Bloomington next fall to study medicine. Ben Prince has one of the finest collections of United States stamps (old and new) in the country. Irene Lustig has a pair of green silk pajamas that she is very proud of. They're sort of a good luck omen, bring sweet dreams. And can you imagine Herman (pop) Burnstein telling us that he went to Franklin, Ind., when Gus Arnhem's band played there, just to date that pretty little singer in the band. Well, the songbird has been married for a long time, and her Mr. was in Franklin with her. Wonder why the J. C. C. A. had their Father and Sons' Day on Mothers' Day? Latest reports from the Derby are that Arv Rothschild and Ed Rose were there. Arv was quite successful, they tell me. It must be a system.

Junior and Senior Council members certainly missed a good bet last Monday when they failed to show up for the joint meeting at Kirshbaum. Just the opportunity of hearing Katherine Turney Garten periodically should be an inducement to join Sr. Council, for that woman is charm and talent personified. Among those spellbound were Esther Friedman, Mrs. Gus Rosen, Mrs. Max Katz, Mrs. Harry Shapiro, Zeena Valinetz, Betty Lapinska, Phyllis Cooler, Phyllis Greenberg, Mrs. Art Rose, and many others. Even Josh Fineberg came in for a few minutes. Goldie Pallman had good intentions of going, but forgot all about it, and was she disappointed. Maybe we should take up a collection and buy her a date book.

Friedland, director of Jewish Education in Cleveland, will be guest speaker at the annual dinner meeting of the Jewish Educational Association, 6:00 p.m., Sunday, May 23, at Beth El Zedeck Temple. A. and Bernard Isaacs, second principal. Reservations for the dinner may be made with Mrs. R. Domont, Hu. 6455, or with the J. E. A. office, Li. 2765. The dinner will be $1.00 per plate.

Freedom Of The Press

Comments on Eph Levin's Answer To The Editor:

I am writing you in regard to the answer of Mr. Eph Levin to the question asked in the Inquiring Reporter, in your issue of May 7, 1937. Mr. Levin states: "the Masonic organization with a membership of 1,500,000 was entirely done away with in Germany." Masons and Jews may be considered synonymous, it is said "Once a Jew, always a Jew." The same may be said of Masons. Once a man becomes a member of this Masonic organization he is always a member.

Mr. Hitler may not know that Masons do not need lofty temples or gilded halls to hold lodge in, anymore than the Jewish race may need meeting places to keep Judaism alive.

Patience will aid the cause more readily, as you who have access to the books of long ago, should know. As for Masonry, King Solomon built the first temple, and others have tried but never succeeded in destroying our great order. So take heart, Judaism will flourish in the same way.

With the sincere wish for greater understanding among all people, and all success for your paper and its attainments, I remain,

George J. Niemyer.

OUR FILM FOLK

By HELEN ZIGMOND

HOLLYWOOD—When reel names were real names—a few additional "Who Was Who's" for your reference: Arthur Tracy was Harry Rosenberg; Milton Berle, Berliner; Al Dubin was labelled Eliahu Dubinsky; Abe Lyman was Simon; Bert Lahr, Isadore Larheim; and Francine Laramore school-girled as Ruby Adler.

Signs of Spring: That broken-down, tin-pan piano, Irving Berlin's favorite instrument (he ships it wherever he goes and uses none other for composing) is suffering an overhaul for the first time in twenty odd years. It was an emergency operation..... it got so bad that when he played, nothing happened!

Lord and Lady Marley: were received here with worshipful acclaim, especially by the Jewish portion of the film colony. Lord Marley spoke to a packed audience, at B'nai B'rith Temple. He was honored at a dinner given at Hillcrest Country Club..... George Jessel m. c'd. Louis B. Mayer conducted him about the M. G. M. lot. Among the stars he visited was Luise Rainer, whom he found "remarkably well-informed on world affairs."

Insiders say the reason Sidney Fox didn't get the Tilly Losch role in "Good Earth" was that her eyes are too round to be made oriental. However, she has a very good chance for a cinema comeback with her success in a current Broadway offering.

A hitch in the Zola title: First labelled, "The Story of Emile Zola," then called, "The Life of Emile Zola," then, "The Life of Zola," and at last official reports, it returned to "The Life of Emile Zola." Zo, la, si, do....ho, hum.....

Seldom does an actor write as well as act in his own film. "Cafe Metropole" is Ratoff's brain-child and a credit to him on both scores.

Ratoff and his wife, Eugenie Leontovich, are celebrating one of their rare reunions during the local run of "Tovarich." They've been married fifteen years. Ratoff claims the secret of their marital happiness is that he thinks she is the greatest actress in the world and she thinks him the greatest actor, and "as long as we keep fooling each other we'll have no problems." When separated from her, he follows her all over the globe by telephone. Once he called her in a tiny town in Rumania..... caused a great commotion..... it was the first call ever transmitted from America. Her pet name for him is "Grischa."

Plan For Study Of Religion In School Talked

By Conference of Jews, Christians

PROVIDENCE, R. I.—Protestant, Catholic and Jewish leaders conferred on May 10th with James F. Rockett, Director of the State Department of Education, on a plan for religious instruction in public schools. Rev. Charles H. Temple, chairman of the Department of Religious Education of the State Council of Churches, and the Rev. T. V. Cassidy, secretary of the Parochial School Board of this Catholic diocese, had a preliminary conference with Mr. Rockett last week.

"Success will come," Rockett declared, "only when all religious denominations feel the need of such a plan. Something ought to be done. It is only a matter of what is the best way of dealing with the problems. There are countless hundreds of thousands of children in this country who do not receive any religious education whatsoever."

"There ought not to be favoritism," he concluded, "of one denomination over another. Religious instruction in the schools—if it can be realized—should be on an absolutely voluntary basis, the parents being responsible in the matter."

All Faiths In Accord

By Conference of Jews, Christians

WOONSOCKET, R. I.—Protestant, Catholic and Jewish clergymen recently submitted a plan for religious instruction in local public schools to the School Committee. Action on the plan will be taken at a later date.

Prominent leaders of the three faiths proposed that the School Committee assign two 45-minute periods weekly for pupils who wish to follow courses in religion. Elective courses in religion will be offered to pupils either in a public building or in a church school. A pupil that does not choose a religion course will be given some elective course, as Library Science, Dramatics or Supervised Study.

Various religious groups will prepare teachers to present courses in religion and in character training. Public school teachers will teach in public school buildings if a sufficient number of pupils ask for a religion course. Volunteer teachers will hold classes in church schools.

No child will be allowed to follow religious instruction either in or out of a public school without a written order from his parent or guardian. Upon receipt of this written permission, the school principal will assign pupils to classes of their parents' choice.

League To Get Data on Position of Jews

GENEVA—A document memorandum on the Jewish economic situation in European countries, showing the extent of discrimination against Jews, will be submitted to the League of Nations shortly by the World Jewish Congress.

The memorandum, prepared by a Congress committee under the direction of Dr. Georg Bernhard, contains data on countries with national minorities obligations and on member nations of the League. For the first time since the war, the document gives a complete picture of Jewish economic life in Europe, particularly in the countries where the economic position has been greatly aggravated.

Statistics on those countries, it is stated, will give League members an idea of the role Jews played before the war and are now playing in agriculture, industry, craftsmanship, retail and wholesale trade, exporting and finances.

Arnovitch Batting .382; Eisenstadt Has Perfect Record With 2 Games Won; Stark Working Again

By Jewish Telegraphic Agency

Morris Arnovich, Jewish outfielder of the Philadelphia N's.. seems headed for a big season.. His batting average for the first two weeks of the season was .382..... This isn't bad for a youngster who has been in the major's but two seasons..... Harry Eisenstadt, rookie pitcher for the Brooklyn Dodgers has chalked up two winning games in the early days of the season..... Eisenstadt has been with Brooklyn farms for the past three years..... This year he impressed Burleigh Grimes to such an extent that the Dodger manager intends to give the 20-year-old Jewish right-hander a chance until the trade ins on June 23.. Incidentally, Harry is pitching 1.000. Two wins in two starts—for a Brooklyn pitcher this is more than remarkable..

Dolly Stark, the only Jewish umpire in organized baseball, is once again 'calling 'em as he sees them.' Dolly quit the game in the early sessions of the 1936 campaign because of a refusal by the baseball moguls on the matter of a raise. He did no umpiring whatsoever in 1936 and officiated as a broadcaster of ball games in Philadelphia that season. Reports had it that his announcing made even the games of the Philly Nationals more interesting.

The slender arbiter was considered one of the ranking umpires of the National League at the time he quit. He made history by becoming the first umpire to 'hold-out'. However, since the time Ford Frick flatly refused to raise Stark's salary above the $9,000 mark, there has been an insistent campaign to bring Dolly back to the majors again — since — his proponents claimed — the big leagues needed an arbiter of his calibre. But, neither Dolly nor the N. L. proxy and the moguls could reach an agreement. Neither side would budge from its position until recently when the veteran Cy Pfirman was stricken with appendicitis. Thus, with this opening in the ranks and a willingness evidenced by Stark to accept the post a new contract was drawn up. Whether or not Dolly is netting more than his former salary of nine grand has not been revealed.

Stark's reason for quitting a game he loved so much was purely financial. "There is no limit to what a ball player may ask at a season's salary," he once told this writer, "as long as he has the stuff needed to help his ball club win some ball games. If good umpiring is my job then I want $12,000 per annum to call them, as I see them. Everybodys knows that a major league umpire is not allowed to fraternize with the ball players and this social ostracism is hard on a man who likes to be among their kind."

For two successive years prior to his 'holdout-campaign' Dolly was voted the "best umpire in the National League" in a poll of all the players in that division.

Likewise—just to prove the man's versatility—Stark was the basketball coach of Dartmouth University until 1936 and turned out crack quintets for seven years before his resignation from that post.

People And Places

BY BERNICE KAPLAN

It's Here

It's here, folks..... Believe it or not, summer is practically around the corner, and if all goes well I'll be doing some very fancy beach lolling next week in Chicago..... Now that I have a new bathing suit, I'll probably subsidize the pools here. You all better read this issue of the Post very carefully because next week there won't be any..... the whole staff is going on vacation, so the news will just have to wait..... (Don't anybody do anything.)

It's InThe Air

One can't go anywhere without smelling orangeblossoms, what with all the weddings, showers, engagements, etc..... There's nothing like June to bring out the old romance..... Even Lena Brodsky is finally succumbing..... She sort of hoped I wouldn't comment on her approaching marriage, but I just can't resist (see society column.) She and Frank Barnett have been one of our most faithful couples, and they're finally announcing their marriage.

Perplexed

Incidentally, there is one thing I am very anxious about..... Does Ray Herwitz spend more time in Indianapolis than he does in Bloomington, where he should be? It seems that he is always around town somewhere, but possibly I just happen to see him each time he is here..... The night air brings out quite a few people including Phil Fogle (Dental), who was strolling south on Meridian Street last Monday..... The same night, we saw Dave Savell crossing Market Street in a very great hurry..... We also saw a young lady acquaintance waiting for the street car, but her name can't be mentioned in the column..... She kept her transfer with her during the entire ride home with us, because she wasn't quite sure if she'd get home at all, driving.

Wanted—A Restaurant

Shopping must be quite a strain on some people..... At least Margaret Davis had a lot of trouble getting a dress that she liked.... However, after I passed my expert judgment on it, she had to keep it..... By that time she realized that it really was quite becoming after all..... Does anyone know of a good place to eat lunch? There must be a few restaurants that serve good food, and yet leave a person enough money to eat with the rest of the week..... A few of my cronies and I are in desperate straits, and if we don't find a restaurant soon we may have to open up one ourselves.. Come to think of it, that's not a bad idea..... Is there anybody who knows how to cook?

Notes

What's this I hear about the Harry Shapiro's leaving us for residence in Chicago? Who'll sell all those clever pipes, and smoking accessories?.. For a quiet evening at home ask Sylvia Eckertman to play the xylophone..... She really can do it very well..... If her playing doesn't amuse her listeners, she can always start a questionnaire on what kind of a dog she has..... No one has ever been able to figure it out yet. It looks like a dachshund because its long and low, but it has that middle-aged heaviness around the waistline which is quite a puzzler.

From Bloomington

Alpha Theta of Phi Beta Delta this week pays tribute to its five graduating seniors who next week will terminate their college careers at the annual Commencement services Monday June 14. Two of the five, Sol Hurwitz and Arv Rothschild, will receive the degree of Bachelor of Arts, and Alvin Baskin, Robert Cohen and Samuel Klezmer will receive the Bachelor of Science degree for Business Administration.... Vice-president of the chapter for the past year, Brother Rothschild won honors in several campus extra-curricular activities. He was the only Jewish student this year to win an "I" sweater, doing so in his capacity as senior manager of the swimming team. He also has been associate-editor-in-chief of The Indiana Daily Student, as well as night editor, telegraph editor and afternoon editor..... He was secretary of Sigma Delta Chi, honorary journalism fraternity, and a member of Dolphin club, honorary swimming group; advertising manager of the Red Book, on the staff of the State Fair newspaper, a member of the Memorial committee of the senior class, and on the editorial staff of the Bored Walk..... Arv also was publicity chairman for the 1936 Junior Prom and was sports editor of The Indiana Alumnus.

More

Hurwitz, former secretary and executive council member of Alpha Theta, has been one of the outstanding internal men of Phi Beta Delta, being the one selected for the chapter plaque this year. On the campus, Sol was a member of Pershing Rifles, crack military unit, social chairman of the Jewish Students Union and for two years he was chairman of the social activities of Phi Beta Delta. Treasurer of Phi Beta Delta for the past three years and undoubtedly one of the finest and most loyal Alpha Theta members is Brother Bob Cohen, who is from Wabash, Ind., and graduates with honors in the Business school. Bob, in addition to being treasurer, has been house manager for the last two years and won the plaque award for internal activity. He also was awarded a gold key for his valuable services as treasurer.... Letterman and star dashman on the swimming team is Sammy Klezmer, another of the graduates. Sam, an Indianopolian, was also a member of Skull and Crescent and proved to be one of the best athletes Alpha Theta ever called brother. Sam also is a member of Dolphin club and was steward of the chapter for the past year. The house will miss Sam's sterling feats in the speed waters..... Last, but far from least, is Brother Al Baskin of Newark, N. J. Al has more than once upheld Phi Beta Delta in campus dramatic productions, bringing his performance to a stirring climax in the Jordan River Revue two years ago.

BIRTHDAY BIOGRAPHIES

The Qualities That Make Us 'American' Will Save Us From Dictatorship, George Michaels Says

"I knew Indianapolis was a coming city, and I intended to grow with it," said George Michaels, explaining why he left New York City where he was born, to start his career here. Terming himself a Hoosier "by adoption", Mr. Michaels became very enthusiastic about local opportunities, remembering how he started out in business with a bicycle. He was originally in the drygoods business, but somehow he began to specialize, and now he has a store of 50,000 different items, none of which is made in Germany. Of that he is justly proud, for it is not so often that one encounters a shrewd business man who is willing to give up the chance of extra profit for an humanitarian and religious cause.

It is just this quality of loyalty, consistently appearing in all Mr. Michaels' ideas, that causes him to say, "I'm for my country, first, last, and always." He enlisted in the World War in the air service, and though he prefers to forget his experience abroad, he still is ready to defend his country again if the occasion should arise. To him, anything that his government does is all right. However, he would deplore the advent of Communism and Fascism because they curtail the liberties of people. He is proud that in America it is possible to travel throughout the country without showing a passport or being watched by the police, and feels that a change of government is unlikely because education is making the conglomeration of citizens true Americans. Americanism is what he is willing to fight for, and he believes that those qualities which make a person "American" will save him from a dictatorship.

Mr. Michaels has had only one week's vacation since he was discharged from the army, but intends to make up his recreation very soon. In the meantime he attends all kinds of sporting events, and for indoor amusement likes contract bridge. However, in common with many others, he does not like his wife as a partner. It was necessary to consult her in another capacity when Mr. Michaels realized that he didn't know quite how old he was. His next birthday is June 9, and he is forty-nine years old.

"I try to fulfill my duties to the best of my ability," Mr. Michaels said, when he mentioned that he was president of the Indianapolis Post No. 114, Jewish War Veterans, and treasurer of the United Hebrew Congregation. His other activities include membership in the American Legion, Monument Lodge, and B'nai B'rith. Any public work for the benefit of the Jews elicits his support.

Mr. Michaels is the personification of a good Jewish citizen. He is faithful to his religion and faithful to his country. This type of constancy is invaluable, because it is only during difficult times that one can appreciate deep and active loyalty, and he has proven his mettle.

Funeral Services Held For Mose Wolf

Funeral services were held in the home Sunday morning for Mose Wolf who died suddenly Friday afternoon in the Methodist Hospital after a heart attack. He was 68 years old. Arrangements were made by Aaron-Ruben funeral home and burial was in the Indianapolis Hebrew Congregation Cemetery. Rabbi Morris M. Feuerlicht officiated.

Mr. Wolf was born in Germany, but had lived in Indianapolis for fifty years. He was the proprietor of a cigar and hosiery store at 30 North Delaware. He was a member of the B'nai B'rith, Indianapolis Hebrew Congregation, Indianapolis Hebrew Congregation Brotherhood, and the Moose and Elks Lodges. Survivors are three brothers, Joe, Jacob, and Nathan Wolf, and two sisters, Miss Dora Wolf and Mrs. Jennie Atlas, all of Indianapolis.

Plans For Milchedeke Supper Completed

Final plans have been made for the "milchedeke" supper to be given by the Ladies Auxiliary of the Knesses Israel Congregation, Sunday, May 30. Mrs. Henry Greenberg is chairman of arrangements. Admission is 40c per person, and the public is cordially invited to attend.

Horowitz, second vice-president; Mrs. Sam Hochman, corresponding and financial secretary; Mrs. Henry Greenberg, treasurer; and Mrs. Harry Bluestein, social secretary. The election will be held at the June meeting.

MANTEL NAMED

Sam J. Mantel has been named on the general committee of District 2, B'nai B'rith. Rabbi J. Marshall Taxay is ex-officio member. Indianapolis delegates to the Supreme Lodge Meeting next year are Louis J. Borinstein and Isidore Feibleman, with Mr. Mantel as alternate.

S. degree, and will leave June 19 for New York where she will attend the summer session of Columbia University. She will be accompanied by her mother, Mrs. L. F. Valinetz.

Rabbi Newman Scores Rabbi Rosenblum's Court Testimony

By RABBI LOUIS L NEWMAN

Rabbi Wm. F. Rosenblum's appearance before the Senate Judiciary Committee to denounce the President's Court reform plan was highly regrettable. Several Rabbis of New York City had been approached by a representative of Senator Copeland inviting their testimony before the Senate Judiciary Committee in opposition to the President's recommendations. Of these Rabbis, Rabbi Rosenblum was the only one who saw fit to go to Washington. It was within his province to express himself, ostensibly as a private citizen. Whatever may have been his intention, however, the effect desired by the opponents of the bills, and the impression to be created among the general public were that a representative of the Jewish community stood opposed to the President's plan. If a Rabbi was to appear for the side against the President's program, it was only fair that those favoring the Court project should call upon a Rabbi. Rabbi Rosenblum's testimony came as a surprise and has created a most unfortunate situation. I shall say nothing of the language of his attack, with the adjectives hurled at the President's plan as "impractical, imperious, impetuous, importunate and impervious." Surely, Rabbi Rosenblum, is not this a little too much? It is not surprising, therefore, that a number of Rabbis have telegraphed the Senate Judiciary Committee in an endeavor to correct the deplorable impression arising from Rabbi Rosenblum's remarks. Dr. Robert Gordis, Chairman of the Social Justice Commission of the Rabbinical Assembly, has sent the following telegram to the Senate Judiciary Committee:

"The Social Justice Committee of the Rabbinical Assembly of America, deeply concerned with the ills of present social and economic conditions, is convinced that these evils can be remedied only through broad-visioned socially advanced legislation by Congress supplemented by State action. In increasing measure the United States Supreme Court has been invalidating federal and State legislation designed to promote the social and economic welfare of the American people which would incidentally strengthen faith in democracy. We therefore welcome as a practical and timely proposal the President's plan to increase the number of Supreme Court Justices, thus infusing new and younger blood into the judicial system. We urge the adoption of the President's plan at this session of Congress concurrently with the initiation of an amendment to deal with the need of judicial reform in a fundamental manner, such an amendment being clearly viewed as a supplement and not a substitute for the President's plan."

Rabbi Israel Goldstein of Congregation B'nai Jeshurun wired the Senate Judiciary Committee as follows:

"I wish you to know that I heartily favor the Presidents proposals for Court reform. It was not my intention to take part publicly in this discussion. In view however of Rabbi Rosenblum's statement before your Committee yesterday opposing

Two representatives of the committee, Dr. Bernhard Kahn and David J. Schweitzer, organizing relief for the estimated 22,000 sufferers from the riots, cabled an appeal to their New York headquarters asking a large sum.

(In New York, the Joint Distribution Committee announced it has made an emergency appropriation of $50,000 for Polish riot relief, of which $20,000 has been allocated to aid Jews in Brzesz.)

One of the worst features of the aftermath of the riots was the nearly complete lack of bread since all 28 of the city's Jewish bakeries were destroyed. Police were reported refusing to supply bread to Jews. Another serious aspect of the situation was the scarcity of medical supplies, since the only three Jewish drugstores were demolished by rioters.

Wise Sees Hull
By Jewish Telegraphic Agency

WASHINGTON—Dr. Stephen S. Wise, in behalf of the American Jewish Congress, of which he is president, conferred with Secretary of State Cordell Hull on the situation of the Jews in Poland and, it was understood, the possibility of friendly representations by the United States to the Polish Government regarding the current wave of excesses.

Mr. Hull, after the meeting, would not reveal the subjects discussed.

Danish Jews Honor King

By Jewish Telegraphic Agency

COPENHAGEN — Denmark's Jewish population has presented King Christian X with 100,000 kroner (about $45,000) as a gift in honor of his twenty-fifth jubilee as the Danish monarch, it was officially announced this week.

The money, it was stated, is to be used to create a model farm to demonstrate to Danish farmers the most modern methods of transforming fallow land into thriving farms.

Special services were held in the Copenhagen Synagogue to mark the jubilee, with the country's most prominent Jews attending. In his jubilee sermon, Chief Rabbi Friediger emphasized the freedom of religious conscience enjoyed by the citizens of Denmark. He also recalled the visit King Christian paid to the synagogue in 1933 on the occasion of its centenary celebration.

law, a difference that is particularly significant today in view of the Rooseveltian New Deal concept that has for its prime purpose the creation of social justice for man. Declaring that "the Hebrew law appreciates the person above property, whereas the English law, which we have inherited, does the reverse," Dr. Montgomery said:

"We are wont to speak of Christian charity in the sense of the care for the poor and unfortunate. This social feature the Church took over directly from Judaism and, by the way, the book of Deuteronomy contains the first Poor Laws in history. This shining characteristic the Jew has kept to the present time, (all honor to him), and we Christians must admit none are more generous in small circles of what is called charity or in the wide ranges of philanthropy than the Jewish people. Again we Christians are proud to speak of the Christian Home. But this institution grew up out of the Jewish home. There are just two cases of domestic home life with parents in the New Testament. The one is the tender relation between Jesus and his mother, and Christian preachers and artists have never wearied in pressing that sacred relationship of a Jewish home. And that is a striking reproduction of a pious Jewish home which Paul recalls in writing to his disciples, the young Jew Timothy, 'recalling the unfeigned faith that is in thee; which first was in thy grandmother Lois and in thy mother Eunice.' Those who know the Jewish home will recognize the characters."

Bible Authenticated

In his paper, Dr. Albright presented evidence exploding the Graf-Wellhausen hypothesis, which has long cast doubt on whether the early books of the Bible truthfully portrayed conditions in the days of the Patriarchs and Moses. Professor Albright said that such discoveries as those at Nuzi, in Northern Mesopotamia and Ugarit in Syria have settled the question of the true antiquity of the Bible story.

The Graf-Wellhausen hypothesis held that the books of Moses had no basis of fact in the history of the Israelites before they entered the Promised Land but were made up, rather, of allegories and customs which actually portrayed conditions in the "Divided Monarchy" of Ahab and Jeroboam and in the Babylonian exile. This point of view was one of the major causes of the so-called "Higher Criticism" conflict between scholarship and religious belief.

Dr. Montgomery similarly held the view that the Hebrew expression of monotheism was Jewry's great contribution to Philosophy. Stating that we must give "palm" to the Greeks for their work in philosophy, he nevertheless points out that "the Hebrew religion did by an original virtue reach a truly philosophic view of the universe. All things go back to the same source, all phenomena of nature are His manifestation, there is reason in all things, even if that reason is not mathematically and physically and chemically analyzed. This assumption of a monism for the understanding of the world of nature was original and brilliant."

Dr. Montgomery also stressed another contribution of the Hebrews to the development of philosophy, namely the fact that they gave the first decided impulse to the profound study of the philosophy of history. "Long before the Greeks," he pointed out, "they saw human history as a whole. History was not for them merely the story of triumphant empire, such as is displayed in the inscriptions of Egypt and Assyria and Persia, and in the Classical historians at large. From the beginning they were centered among the peoples, suffered in the struggles of the empires; but even if in their history the verdict appeared against them, it was for them the writing of God, even as His hand was controlling the destinies of all peoples. The Prophets may be appealed to for the evidence, but I hold that corresponding proof is to be found in the homelier books of history. I have come to think that almost the most remarkable chapter in the Hebrew Bible, secularly speaking, is the tenth chapter of Genesis with its survey of the known races of the world and their geographical distribution. It is only after that 'view of the whole' that the history of the Peculiar People comes to be told. It was not their choice, but a divine fate that drove them towards view of human history as a whole and their part in it, if ultimately as a Suffering Servant, and to be 'a light to lighten the Gentiles.'
